

The City of Detroit invites you to attend...

Brush Park Form-Based Code Public Meeting

COME JOIN US!

The City of Detroit is halfway throughout the six month planning process for the Brush Park neighborhood, including a new form-based zoning code. The new code will be put into city law to regulate development through built form in order to foster predictable built results and a high-quality public realm. Join us for our third meeting as we share and discuss the evolution of the plan since the first public presentation.

The City, along with Utile (lead consultants), will be presenting the latest updates on the project. A recap and overview of previous meetings will be presented along with new materials representing specifics on building typologies, thoroughfares, parking, setbacks and more.
